

PARTICIPATION IS A TRADITION AT THE GARDENS

It is a long-standing tradition, dating back to the establishment of the Gardens, for residents to be involved in organizing and managing the available activities. Six residents serve on the Board of Directors. The Gardens Club, which includes every resident as a member, oversees and finances these activities, while also facilitating communication between the residents and administration. The Gardens Club Council, made up of elected officers and representatives, meets monthly. Below is a list of 65 resident volunteer committees and four Board committees. Beyond committee engagement, there are dozens of informal interest groups such as book clubs and games groups.
